SCHOOL DISPUTE
OVER CONSOLIDATIONTaxpayers' Suit Starts Against
New Britain and Chalfont
Borough

ASK FOR AN INJUNCTION

Planned to Enlarge School to Provide for Children of Community

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 22—Hearing started in the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks county yesterday in the case of a group of taxpayers of New Britain Township, against the school boards of New Britain Township and Chalfont Borough. The plaintiffs are asking that an injunction be directed preventing the school board of the two districts from enlarging the Chalfont school to take care of New Britain Township grade children, a project that had already been contemplated when it was stopped by the present court proceedings. It was planned to consolidate the two districts and build with the aid of WPA funds. One group of New Britain Township taxpayers object while another group known as the intervening defendants, are New Britain Township taxpayers who want the Chalfont school enlarged for consolidation purposes.

The case is being heard before Judge Calvin S. Boyer, with six lawyers interested in the case. The chief questions involved are as follows:

1—Is the agreement to erect addition to Chalfont school by New Britain Township insufficiently clear as to who shall have legal title to the land and the structure to be built on it?

2—It is insufficiently clear as to how and in what proportion certain items of cost shall be divided between the districts?

3—Would the cost of erecting the addition by New Britain create an indebtedness of that district beyond 2 per cent of its assessed valuation so as to require its approval by the voters at an election?

4—Can New Britain condemn and take land outside of its boundaries for school purposes?

Garfield Aletmus, Phila., arrested in Tullytown for driving while drunk, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday and was fined $200 and costs.

Russell Musselman, 34, Spring Mount, pleaded guilty to forgery and was sentenced to 30 days to 2 years in the County Prison, Musselman, a WPA worker, admitted forging a check for $15.50 on a West Rockhill Township resident.

Alfred Sorenson, Croydon, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of assault and battery. The Court suspended sentence on condition that the defendant keep the peace and abstain from liquor. He was placed on probation for a period of one year. He admitted striking William Webb, of Croydon, on September 25.

George Weidemeyer, Sellersville, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods. He was fined $5 and costs and a prison sentence was suspended on condition that he surrender his automobile driver's licenses and not make application for one year. He operated an automobile without the owner's consent.

To serve not less than five or more than ten years in the Eastern State Penitentiary at hard labor and solitary confinement was the sentence imposed on 49-year-old Daniel Schaffer, Quakertown leather plant worker in the Bucks county court yesterday by President Judge Hiram H. Keller.

Shaffer pleaded guilty to a charge of sodomy, assault and battery involving a four-year-old neighbor girl.

"I have never heard a case with such a filthy background," Judge Keller remarked in pronouncing sentence. Shaffer admitted that he had been accused of similar charges some years ago.

William McHenry, 26, of Crickside, Pa., a high school graduate, and at one time a student at Penn State, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Keller to serve from one to two years in the Bucks County Prison. McHenry pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining money under false pretense and false impersonation of an officer.

BENSALEM J. V.'S WIN
THIRD STRAIGHT GAMEDefeat St. Francis Industrial School by the Score of 19 to 6

SCORE 3 TOUCHDOWNS

By Louis Tomlinson

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 22—Apparently the Bensalem Owls varsity eleven should get instructions on a winning formula from their younger brethren, the Owlets. Coach Reimer's Junior Varsity members turned in their third consecutive victory here yesterday afternoon when they upset a weaker foe in St. Francis Industrial school, 19-6. Whereas the J. V.'s have won three and lost none, the varsity eleven has yet to win a game in four starts.

The sub-varsity boys turned in their third straight victory by tallying a touchdown in each of the first, second, and fourth periods while their opponents could score but once, in the third canto.

The visitor's six-pointer came as a result of a spectacular runback of an intercepted pass by the Industrialists' tight guard, Francisco. He grabbed a pass thrown by Bob Whyte, the Owls quarterback, on the 50 yard line, then proceeded to race the entire distance of half the field to score. The extra point try failed.

But by that time though, Reimer's boys had already had 13 points to their credit when Bob Whyte hit the line from the one yard marker to count the initial touchdown. He also added the extra point by hitting off tackle on a fake kick. The second score came in the second period when the same Whyte tossed a 15 yard pass to Friel, left end, who caught the flying oval on the 25 yard line and scored from there. This time the extra point conversion failed.

So at the half time the Owls led, 13-0. By the end of the third period, however, St. Francis clipped the score to 13-6 as a result of Francisco's interception and run.

But the Owls were back for more in the final chapter in which period they counted their final touchdown of the fray. This score was again the result of a pass tossed by Bob Whyte. Whyte tossed this one to Strickler.

Guild at Cornwells Heights
Plans Annual Exhibition

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 22—The Cornwells Branch of the Needlework Guild of America will conduct its annual exhibition of garments in Eddington Presbyterian Church house on Saturday, November 6th, at two p. m.

"Mother Moore" of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, will address the meeting. The public is invited to attend.

Members who have finished garments are asked to give same to Mrs. A. S. Lippincott as soon as possible.

P. T. A. Program Devoted
To Subject of "Scouting"

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 22—The meeting of Cornwells Heights Parent-Teacher Association, in the high school auditorium, last evening, was devoted almost exclusively to the Boy Scout movement.

Assemblyman Thomas B. Stockham, of Morrisville, was the speaker, having as his subject "Scouting in Relation to School Work."

Several Boy Scouts of Cornwells Heights gave a demonstration and a skit "Hot News". The collection of the evening was turned over to the Boy Scouts. A Cub Pack was present, with the leader, Joseph Kish, Andalusia, who spoke on Cubbing.

Other features were group singing led by E. J. Frick; vocal solo, "Harbor Lights," Miss Erma Ledderle; selections by senior chorus with brief history of each number by different members.

President, Mrs. Roscoe Perkins, was in charge, and minutes and treasurer's report were given by Miss Clara Withers and Mrs. John Whyte, respectively.

Members were reminded of the banquet and pageant of the county P. T. A. in Doylestown, on October 29th. Transportation will be provided for those desiring such. Reservations are to be made by October 26th.

The biennial conference of the state P. T. A. will be held in Lancaster on November 5th and 6th. Details may be secured from Mrs. Perkins by any interested.

The attendance banner was awarded to Miss Olive Sergeant's home-room. Refreshments were enjoyed.

AN EFFICIENT TAX COLLECTOR

Periods such as almost every community in the country had to go through during the early and middle 1930's, made the life of a Tax Collector anything but a bed of roses. Under such conditions there are three or four large and distinct problems which he must meet and solve, each contrary or antagonistic to the others.

In the first place, he has taken a solemn oath to the entire community to perform the duties of his office, fully, conscientiously and impartially. Those duties are to collect from each individual in the community the taxes that have been assessed against them.

Moreover, he is under heavy bond for the proper and honest performance of those duties — and in the case of Louis B. Giron, Tax Collector for the Borough of Bristol, that total bond amounts to no less than $70,000: a bond of $10,000 applying to the collection and proper return of Borough taxes; a $30,000 bond covering school taxes; and a like sum applying to county taxes collected by him.

In the second place, however, and in the face of the duties which the Tax Collector is sworn and bonded to carry out impartially, there have been years during Mr. Giron's term in office which is now expiring, when there have been some who just could not meet their tax obligations at the time they fell due, no matter how willing their purpose or honest their effort.

And thirdly, regrettable as the fact may be, there have been some others who have not the desire to meet such obligations until compelled to do so, and who have tried to sidestep by pleading an inability which was not a fact.

Fourth, this all boils down to the perhaps unpleasant but inescapable truth that if the Tax Collector grants any concessions which honestly can be said to be favoritism, he is in fact cheating each of those who pay, in order to favor financially those who will not pay. And if a Tax Collector isn't aware of it when he takes office, he soon learns that those who do not intend to pay their taxes until forced to by the final pressure, openly regard him and will publicly paint him as a soulless oppressor—a Shylock, a Simon Legree, and an Old Scrooge, all rolled into one.

Actually, as he soon learns, the job requires impartiality at all times and under all circumstances, backed by unswerving

CORONER EXONERATES
MAN OF ACCIDENT BLAMERelease Jos. L. Teti, Trenton,

Man on Lincoln Highway

INQUEST IS HELD HERE

Joseph L. Teti, 34 Hudson street, Trenton, N. J., was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday, of all blame for the death of a man believed to be William H. Carson, 60, New York City, N. Y. Carson was struck by an automobile operated by Teti on the Lincoln Highway, September 12, at about 9:45 p. m., about a quarter of a mile east of City Line, Bensalem Township.

The coroner's jury held an inquest into the death of Carson yesterday afternoon in the Municipal Building, here.

Deputy Coroner Dr. James P. Lawler was the first witness, and he told the jury of being summoned to view the body of a man on the night of September 12th. He gave the cause of death as multiple fractures. Dr. Lawler said: "There was some doubt about the identity of the man at the time. He was a transient, and to the best of my knowledge the identification was not definite even yet." Dr. Lawler said that the driver of the car, Mr. Teti, was sober.

Private C. A. Leftwich, Pennsylvania Motor Police, told of his investigation, and described the marks upon the highway due to the brakes having been applied suddenly by Teti.

Mr. Teti told the jury that he was en route to Trenton, accompanied by his wife and child. He said that he had

LOWER BUCKS SCOUTING
DIST MAY PASS QUOTAFavorable Reports Received From Canvassers In Financial Campaign

DRIVE THOROUGH ONE

From favorable reports that are coming in from canvassers at work in every section of District No. 1 of the Bucks County Boy Scout Council, it appears certain for the first time in several years that this District, commonly known as the Lower Bucks District, will definitely reach, if not surpass, its quota in the annual financial campaign.

Every effort is being put forth to make this year's canvass the most thorough possible. District No. 1 covers a large area, including Bristol, Edgely, Tullytown, Croydon, Edgington, Cornwells, Andalusia, Newportville, and all the intervening territory of Bristol and Bensalem Townships. However, the committee in direct charge of the campaign, which consists of Paul V. Forster, chairman; Walter G. Pitonka, Dr. J. J. Williams, Herbert A. Pettit, Sr., and Harold W. Thompson, has succeeded in setting up a campaign organization which, as indicated, is already showing substantial results.

At a recent meeting, the Bristol Exchange Club threw its support behind the Boy Scout campaign when a large number of its members volunteered services as canvassers. This list includes, in addition to members of the committee who are also members of the club: Russell W. DeLong, Franklin W. Wallin, George Wiedeman, Andrew MacArthur, Dr. William Groff, Howard Thornton, I. Johnston Hetherington, E. Fleming, John Williams, Percy G. Ford, David L. Hertzler, John F. Wear, James S. Dougllass, Keith M. Rosser, Roy F. Fry, Richard T. Myers, George Molden, Edward Stetson, Harry Ranck, and Joseph Mintzer.

Other public-spirited citizens also are giving their valuable co-operation in the campaign. In the sixth ward

SHORT-WAVE RADIO TO BE

Counties

INSTALL IN TOWERS

HARRISBURG, Oct. 22—Secretary James F. Bogardus of the Department of Forests and Waters said today that radio will be given its most extensive test in forest fire protection work this Fall in the State's forests. These experiments were started in 1934.

New short-wave radio machines have been installed in forest fire towers throughout Schuylkill, Carbon and Luzerne counties, and in the Pottsville offices of the District Forester, and will be used during the Fall fire season.

Depending on the success of this wide hook-up, it is entirely possible that these machines can be used in all State towers to communicate directly with the district headquarters in the respective areas. The hook-up can also be made so that the different headquarters throughout the State can communicate with each other.

This will mean greatly increased efficiency in reporting fires and also

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1937, by The Baltimore Sun)

"All In One Man's Head"

A FEW DAYS ago when the precipitous drop in securities had created a general jittery feeling, an astute and experienced observer, well versed in economic as well as political affairs and by no means unfriendly to the President, was asked what he thought apt to happen in this country. "How can anyone tell," he said, "when everything is in one man's head."

IT WAS HIS way of saying that no one can tell anything about the future because everything hinges upon what Mr. Roosevelt does, and no one knows about that—not even Mr. Roosevelt himself, who may have one thing in his mind today and a quite different thing tomorrow. He himself has described his "strategy" by using the old quarterback simile, which permits him to shift his tactics—and even his direction—with each play. It is a system that works all right in running a football team, but leaves much to be desired as a national policy.

FOR EXAMPLE, at the moment with conditions concededly critical, with business in a slump, men being laid off by the thousands, the stock market partially collapsed and industry generally thoroughly alarmed, there seems reason for believing that Mr. Roosevelt is really disturbed; that he is convinced the national budget must now be balanced and is very much in earnest about economy. At his press conferences, where he has always had his deepest enjoyment, he continues to hold the pose

W. HARRY KING DIES
AT THE AGE OF 93 YEARSWas One of Bristol Township's Oldest Residents; Had Active Life

VOTED FOR LINCOLN

W. Harry King, one of Bristol Township's oldest residents, died last night, at the age of 93 years.

Death occurred at 11 o'clock at the home of a nephew of the deceased, Clarence King, Bath Road, after an illness of several weeks. He was the husband of the late Anna Bailey King.

The greater part of Mr. King's life had been spent in Bristol Township, with the exception of approximately 15 years when he resided in Bristol Borough. He is the last of his generation, his only survivors being several nieces and nephews.

Mr. King, who for a period of 41 years and seven months had been employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad as paymaster, had travelled considerably during his life-time, and one of the fondest moments he recalled was his meeting in 1864 with President Abraham Lincoln, for whom he cast his first ballot "on age."

The deceased was the son of the late James C. and Elizabeth A. King. Born in Bristol Township he received his education in the public schools of this section, and at the Carversville Business School.

Although Mr. King had seen more than nine decades pass in review, his age until the last few months, did not deter him from his daily activities. He was most keen until the time of his fatal illness, and until he was well past his four score years and ten, he travelled throughout the United States. He made many long journeys alone, but in the course of his travels readily made friends with whom he enjoyed conversing. Trips to the far South and West were made when up in his eighties and past 90 years of age. He displayed a keen interest in affairs of the day, and greatly belied his age.

Mr. King frequently commented that famous pictures of Lincoln were very good likenesses, and showed the Emancipator as Mr. King remembered him.

Mr. King cast his first ballot in 1864 for Lincoln at the polling place in Newportville.

The deceased entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad on February 17, 1874. The many trips which he took during his lifetime during the course of duty and for pleasure also

REPUBLICANS RALLY
AT NEWPORTVILLE;
HEAR SPEAKERSJames E. Groome Says That America is Coming Back to Her Senses

STOCKHAM IS SPEAKER

Candidates and Members of Committee Presented To Audience

(By Staff Correspondent)

NEWPORTVILLE, Oct. 22—"A meeting of this kind demonstrates that America is coming back to her senses. To continue in the way of the so-called New Deal would mean ruin."

So spoke James E. Groome, Yardley, in addressing the men and women who packed the fire station, here, last evening, on the occasion of a rally sponsored by Bristol Township Republican Association.

And of the present group in power in the United States, Assemblyman Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville, had this to say: "We are confronted with a challenge to our government—and where are we going? There seems to be no bottom to the whole thing. The object seems to be to distract the intelligent, thinking person. But let us not be hood-winked or misled. We must be wary of the design on the part of the party in power to make one party. And back of one-party government there always follows a dictatorship. . . . Our Democracy is the autocracy of the people—are we going to save it?"

These two speakers, together with others who were enthusiastically received at the big rally, were introduced by the chairman of the Bucks County Republican Association, A. Harry Clayton, Doylestown.

As he opened the program after being introduced by Robert Porter, chairman of the Young Republicans of Bristol Township, Mr. Clayton said: "I am pleased to witness such an outpouring of Republicans, especially to see so many young Republicans in the audience. And I am sure that when the votes are counted on November 2nd the Republicans will walk into office with the old-time majorities. We can all constitute ourselves as a committee of workers, and the county and local officials will walk into office with big majorities."

County and local candidates were introduced by Mr. Clayton, as were also committee-women and committee-men of the township. The county candidates briefly addressed the gathering.

Those presented by the county chairman at the outset of the program were: T. Russell Stackhouse, candidate for township supervisor; Mrs. Horace Fleckenstein, committee-woman of West Bristol Township; William Knight, committeeman of Lower Bristol Township; Joseph Seader, candidate for tax collector; Mrs. Morris Dayhoff, candidate for school director; Mrs. Harry Frederick, candidate for assessor, and committeewoman of Lower Bristol Township; Mrs. George Garretson, committeewoman of East Bristol Township; Fred Boehringer, committeeman of West Bristol Township.

"The men and women you have before you this evening are capable individuals of high standing in their communities, and all are well qualified to care for the duties of the office they seek," said Chairman Clayton.

The first candidate presented was Ezra Miller, Newtown Township, who seeks the office of prothonotary.

Edward Biester, Doylestown, the Republican candidate for district attorney, spoke to the assemblage, voicing his appreciation of the attendance thusly:

"It is marvellous to see the wonderful enthusiasm among Republicans

Chief of District G-Men
Addresses The Rotarians

Bringing to Bristol Rotary Club members something of the history and work of the "G-Men," Robert C. Hendon, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice, Philadelphia, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the club yesterday.

The Rotarians assembled in the Elks Home, with a complete attendance, guests on this occasion including Walter Irvine, president of Doylestown Rotary Club, and others.

Introduced by Jesse C. Everitt, Chief Hendon commenced a most interesting and informative talk, one which later elicited many questions on the part of the local club-men.

A complete history of the type of men selected for work in the Department of Justice was given by Mr. Hendon, who then told of the training required; and followed up with the method by which the department builds up statistics of cases. The finger-printing aids were one of a detail, and many outstanding cases of apprehension of criminals recalled.

Group singing was led by Ernest Gamble, Langhorne, and business was in charge of president, Frank Volt.

An inter-county meeting of Rotary Clubs is being arranged, with Dr. J. Fred Wagner named to represent Bristol Rotary Club.

all over the county. We are working hand-in-hand for the whole Republican party. But I don't know any place where the enthusiasm is as high as here in Bristol Township." Continuing, Mr. Biester told of the disgust on the part of the thinking people of the nation for the things that are going on in the name of government. "Democrats and Republicans alike are sick and tired of the crazy things that are going on under the New Deal. I believe this is a Republican year in Bucks County all along the line. It is no time to compromise. If you believe in our cause, go to the polls and vote the straight Republican ticket."

Expressing the hope that each would do his and her best to get out the vote on November 2nd, William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville, candidate for sheriff, asked for support of the local and county Republican candidates.

A high tribute was paid by Mr. Groome in his address to the women who serve as school directors. "They are a real contribution to the school boards in any district." After reviewing briefly the history of the Republican party, Mr. Groome, who is president of the Bucks County Firemen's Association, recalled to the minds of all present that the Democratic party promised to reduce government expenses by 25 per cent. "They never carried out their promise, and now we find that instead of a reduction, government expenses have grown by leaps and bounds, and the great number of government employees is vastly increased. It is useless to review the silly expenditures of the Democratic party. They are of too recent history. We all know that none of the promises have been fulfilled. . . . A meeting of this kind augurs well for we are getting back to that old type of American citizen who settled on the bleak New England shore and fought not only the climate, and animals, but also homesickness—fought for all they held dear—and made America what it is today. I believe you people represent more nearly the old-fashioned American than we have had in the last few years. You are fighting for something you hold dear. A meeting of this kind demonstrates that America is coming back to her senses. To continue in the way of the so-called New Deal would mean ruin."

Turning thoughts directly to the Republican party, Mr. Groome informed "You have a proud history. The Republican party, organized in 1854, elected Abraham Lincoln as its first president. And the world recognizes Abraham Lincoln as one of the greatest men of the world. He freed the slaves and saved the nation. It will take a hundred years for you and me, regardless of politics, to save America today."

"The plan of the President to call an extra session of Congress, 'when thousands upon thousands of dollars will be spent to do what should have been done at the regular session,' was roundly scored by Mr. Groome."

"I have always been a Republican because I am firmly convinced that the men who have been at the head of the party are well fitted to look after the welfare of this nation. We must develop a sense of responsibility; we must recognize our job."

In speaking of the county candidates the Yardleyite had this to say:

"Edward Biester is his own best advertisement."

"Ezra Miller has been a school director for many years. He is honest and upright, and is a high type of American citizen."

"And Bill Stackhouse is a man who worked for nothing as county fire marshal for many years. He has made Bucks County a safer place in which to live. He is a citizen's candidate; he deserves to be recognized. He has given of his best years to the people of the county."

"Back these men who have been tried and not found wanting."

A hearty laugh was drawn from the crowd when one speaker had this to say: "Mrs. Lindbergh drew an Ace; Mrs. Mussolini drew a Duce; Wally drew a King; but Mrs. Roosevelt isn't sure if she got the New Deal or drew the Joker."

Assemblyman Thomas B. Stockham, mayor of Morrisville, minced no words when he said: "We have come to the time when we should not mince words. There were passed at the last session of the Pennsylvania Legislature 746 bills, many of which are conflicting in purpose and intent. The administration in Harrisburg should have a song, and the title should be, 'Listen to the mocking bird.' For we know there is to be a special session of the United States Congress, and we're bound to have one in Harrisburg."

Turning attention to the Republican party and its principles, Mr. Stockham reminded "It's time that we are proud of the fact that we are Republicans, and many patriotic Democrats are thinking as we are."

Speaking of the laws and debts that burden the American people the speaker stated: "We are loaded with burdens which hold us back. There must be a bottom. We must live within our means. The administering of jobs for those in need should be done in a more direct way. Let us cut out some of this wasteful expenditure, and let us give the men who need it something to work for, and help them to gain pride in themselves and initiative. Make them feel they are doing a job that is worth-while. . . . This tampering with the crops and prices is also detrimental. It leaves the wage-earner with less. Let us let business alone to flourish. The man who seeks to do things by direct methods is dangerous, and is leading us into a morass—seeking a dictatorship. We must stand fast by our principles. You have a part to play on November 2nd to save our union."

Announcement was made that the next township rally will occur in determination, and tempered by tact, discernment, considerate understanding, and even at times requiring the bargaining ability of an old-fashioned horse-trader. In unexpected places he finds the odds against him, and he is asked to accept a deal from a "stacked deck."

If he is to perform his duties with the best possible results and the nearest approach to success, he must combine the qualities of friend and counsellor, task-master and boss, arbiter and enforcer. He must bring to his job within a limited but important sphere, the abilities of real statesmanship.

And when a community gets such a man for that job, it has something to hold on to.

Backed by a knowledge of the Borough, its requirements and its people, gained in two successive terms covering eight years in Borough Council, Louis B. Girton was chosen Tax Collector on November 5, 1929, and was re-elected for the term now expiring, in November, 1933.

He was again nominated in the recent September Primary, and hence will be a candidate for the approving vote of his fellow townsmen, and re-elected, on November 2nd.

The success and the tact with which he has administered the office during the difficult years of this expiring term, and the fact that he has left understanding and good will where rancor and unjust retaliation easily might have been incurred, indicate that in the approaching election the people of Bristol will emphatically say that Louis B. Girton is the man for this difficult and exacting job, and that he will, therefore, be returned to office for four more years of faithful, conscientious and intelligent service to his fellow citizens of Bristol.

Born at Swain and Mifflin Streets, Bristol, September 21, 1875, the son of the late William A. and Sarah Girton, Mr. Girton lived in the Third Ward, in which he was born, for 32 years. Then he became a resident of the First Ward.

After attending public school here, Mr. Girton went to the paper mill of Wilson & Fenimore, and later to the Thomas L. Leedom Company, where he wove carpets. Later he was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, having charge of car record and demurrage accounts at the freight station here; and subsequently fired locomotives for the P. R. R. on the New York division for two years.

He then learned the tinsmith business, under his father, and purchased the business when his father retired. The latter was a G. A. R. man, was always a Republican, and the son followed in his footsteps.

His candidacy for re-election as Tax Collector for the Borough of Bristol is based upon an unusual record of public service.

Harvesting Erie's Grape Crop

Concord grapes from the vineyards of Erie county make jellies, wine and grape-juice for tables all over the world. Moisture from Lake Erie is reputed responsible for soil conditions peculiarly adapted to grape-raising. Pretty picker is Miss Geraldine Twomey.

Dick's hall, Edgely, on Thursday evening, October 28th.

A program of entertainment, arranged by the committee, was much enjoyed; and refreshments were served.

The Great Game of Politics

of the serene Executive, undisturbed by conditions and with everything well in hand.

BUT HIS CLOSE friends know better. They know that in the last few days the gravity of the situation has been impressed upon him and that he agrees drastic cuts such as he made in the first six months of his first term, and more taxes, are essential if a danger greater than any that has confronted the nation for a good many years is to be averted. In Mr. Roosevelt's head at the moment is a determination to restore national solvency before it is too late. Clearly this depression cannot be blamed on Mr. Hoover, or the Stock Market drop on the "Wall Street gamblers." His claim was that he had brought back prosperity and the S. E. C. had made market manipulation impossible.

YET TODAY his advisory group is cold with apprehension and feels that unless the President gets the Federal finances really under control, he, his New Deal and his Administration will be sunk—with the country itself in very deep and extremely muddy water. The alarm, it may be said, was not allayed by the President's financial statement a few days ago. Among other things which that revealed to the discerning was that the deficit for the year will be approximately a billion dollars; that more than $600,000,000 of old-age pension funds will have been used for current expenses this year; that by the close of the year we will be $1,250,000,000 behind in meeting the sinking fund requirements; that the national debt is not being reduced from its highest point; that we are living today upon the Social Security revenue, which is a tricky and dangerous way of dodging realities and an inexcusable deception of the people.

IT IS NOT surprising that these facts, taken in connection with the almost certain prospect that as a result of decreased business next year there will be decreased revenues from taxes, should frighten the White House advisers. They are enough to perturb any man who looks them fairly in the face. The President has already outlined some of the things that can be done. His more level-headed counselors say he is convinced of the others. It is still possible to get national finances under control and there is no question that, at this time, it is the Roosevelt intention to regain control through determined action along the conservative lines which have been urged upon him for five years and which he himself urged before he entered the White House.

IT IS A tremendous job and if done will take every ounce of strength the President has. The obstacles are enhanced by several things. One, of course, is that it involves reversing his direction and admitting mistakes, which, to a man of Mr. Roosevelt's nature, is an extremely difficult thing to do. Another is that it means the scrapping of pet projects and the drastic use of the axe both on expenditures and on personnel. Still, another is the fact that already the left-wing radicals with whose pinkish notions and weird theories he has been so sympathetic are already howling against any move toward economy, denouncing the effort to reduce the relief burden, asserting that the business slump is engineered by the "Tories" and that the stock market drop hurts only the gamblers. Mr. Roosevelt knows in his heart that this is nonsense—makes no secret of his feelings in private conversation.

THE GREAT question is whether he has it in him to do the job—whether he can stand up against the passionate protests of the "New Liberals" and conquer his own vanity and pride; whether he can keep it in his head. Things are too serious now for partisanship. Recriminations will not help and "I told you so" stuff is out of place. It is only enlightened self-interest to hope the President has both the strength and the stability to carry out what undoubtedly he wants to do—and every sensible man will want to help. Nevertheless, it is—though it shouldn't be—"all in one man's head."

MANY MATERIALS ARE AVAILABLE FOR THE NEW FALL DRESSES

By Miss Edna Stephany (Home Economics Representative)

The trend in new materials is toward the smooth finish. If your dress is to be of wool, the material may be one of those sheer lightweight fabrics, or Jersey or a wool voile treated to resist too many wrinkles. For suits and coats, soft fine tweed, broadcloth, or alpaca are new.

Silks are made with heavy woolen-like weave; Jersey is popular, so is satin, and for the dressy afternoon or evening gown, the weave is crepe, or corded like faille or bengaline. A contrast to this is the duvetyne. Velvet or corduroy is popular for suits and jackets with woolen skirts.

The synthetic fabrics are mixed with wool in many fabrics. While the result is not too warm, it may be less irritating to the skin.

In buying material, good quality is most economical in the long run. It wears better, stands cleaning and pressing, and justifies the amount of work put on it. Be sure to ask what you are getting if no label tells you. Avoid weighted silks as metallic weighting affects the durability of the fabric. Check on information about color fastness and shrinkage. Any decision as to fabric should go with decision as to pattern. Helpful suggestions for choosing suitable materials are given on the back of pattern envelopes.

Black is first choice in color. Unrelieved black is not flattering to many women. You may prefer to lighten it with emerald green or beige, dull blue, pink, or purple shades. Carefully chosen, a harmony of two or three colors may be used. The browns include the dark "wood" tones as well as beige and "spice" tones.

The greens are dark evergreen

KING—At Bristol, Pa., Oct. 21, 1937, William Henry, husband of the late Anna Bailey King, in his 94th year. Relatives and friends, also employees of the P. R. R. are invited to the funeral services from the residence of his nephew, Clarence King, Bath Road, Sunday at 2 o'clock. Interment in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call Saturday evening.

shades, and olive green. Try a combination of light and dark shades, very popular this Fall. The reds include wine shades and rust or orangey reds. Blue and yellow, usually Spring shades, are surprisingly popular. The yellow is gold and the blue a dull, almost slate blue.

UNIQUE NATIVE MENU READ IN MANY LANDS

Ever make up a menu in pidgin English?

Even the smart hostess, who is ever on the alert for some novelty, is counseled against emulating the South Sea Islander when honorable guests arrive.

Seldom, however, have the efforts of any cook received such international publicity, for this menu, compiled in New Guinea, was written into a report to the Council of the League of Nations. The report came from the Administrator of the Australian-mandated Territory of New Guinea, who describes a quaint experience in the course of a visit to the home of a settler in Belik, in New Ireland.

The settler's native cook had been in Rabaul, the capital of the Territory and had been fascinated by a menu card. He evidently considered that Belik should do honor to the visiting Administrator and his wife, by having a menu card on the dinner table.

Having received some instruction in the phonetic writing of pidgin English, the chief medium of communication between whites and natives, the proud cook produced this menu:

BEIJIK, Tudei (Tuesday)
Small food along time belong drink

(Savouries with cocktails)
Soup belong Balus (Pigeon Soup)
Kindam now he got fish too
(Crayfish with Fish)
Balus he fry 'im
(Roast Pigeon)
Meat (goat), now potato, now cabbage, now coconut (top of palm eaten as vegetable), now mint sauce,
Jelly, now he got tart jam too
(Jam Tart and Jelly)
Cheese now Lolly
(Cheese and Sweets)
Kopi (Coffee)

McHenry, who was employed by a Newtown township farmer, admitted collecting about $200 from 30 Bucks county farmers in two days. He represented himself as a dog inspector and milk official, using a fireman's badge to fool the people.

"I used to see a dog without a collar and I then fined the owner $10," McHenry told the Court. The Court directed that McHenry refund the money to the various victims.

Just driven past another car when suddenly there loomed an object in front of his machine. "I swerved my car to the right in an effort to avoid striking the object, which I later reognized as a human being." The witness stated his car almost turned over because of his having suddenly applied the brakes. He went to the assistance of the man, as did others, and the injured man's belt was used to strap his leg, in an effort to stop the loss of blood. A physician came to the scene and said that the man would soon die. He was not removed to a hospital.

The jury was comprised of John Y. Turner, Frank Louderbough, Evan Vandegrift, Damon Jobson, William Moyer, Patrick McGonigle.

Short-Wave Radio To Be Tested in Forest Fires

locating them, Secretary Bogardus said.

In addition to the machines which have been installed in the towers, the travelling inspectors are also equipped with very light portable machines with which they are able to make contact with at least one tower from anywhere in their district. In this way, messages may be sent directly from a forest fire line to a nearby tower and back again so that the District office may be constantly informed as to the progress of the fire, the need for additional help, and other important information which is essential to the proper control of the forest fire. This has been either out of the question or obtainable heretofore only as a result of the use of messengers on foot.

The radio machines require licensed operators, consequently proposed twer-men must now qualify for the Fed-

included: Bristol to New York daily for 10 years; trip to the Pacific coast; three round-trips weekly from Bristol to Washington, D. C., for three years; more than a dozen journeys to Florida; 10 or more trips to St. Louis, Mo.; and six to Chicago, Ill. This was in addition to countless other short journeys in the East.

On his 90th birthday Mr. King made a short airplane trip in St. Louis.

During his service with the Pennsylvania Railroad Mr. King served as clerk in the superintendent's office in Jersey City, N. J., and later acted as paymaster in the pay-car operating out of Jersey City. After he retired from railroad service Mr. King was in the United States government service at Washington, D. C., serving as a confidential messenger, for three years during the World War.

After his retirement from active duty the Township resident frequently went to Jersey City from which point he enjoyed accompanying the paymaster on jaunts in the pay-car.

Funeral service will be held from the residence of Clarence King, Bath Road, Sunday at two o'clock. Burial in Bristol Cemetery will be in charge of the H. S. Rue Estate, funeral directors. Friends may call Saturday evening.

OPEN FRIDAY & SATURDAY NIGHTS

Although the 1937 shipping season on the Great Lakes rolled up an impressive showing during the early months, the movement of iron ore and coal on the world's greatest inland waterway has fallen off sharply of late. Ore shipments were expected to total 60,000,000 tons and coal shipments better than 40,000,000 tons but numerous carriers have been laid up in the past month and tonnage for September fell off sharply. Total shipments of iron ore up to Oct. 1 total 54,612,122 gross tons in comparison to 33,762,588 for the same period last year. Coal shipments up until Oct. 1 total 35,314,337 tons, well over last year's record mark of 32,729,100 tons for the same period.

Veterans

More than half of the 16,000 men and women in this Pennsylvania company have had 10 years or more of telephone experience.

Of these, almost 2,300 have served more than 20 years! And nearly 500 have been in this business from 30 years up to half a century!

At first thought, this may mean little to you. But the business of rendering good telephone service cannot be learned in a day. And because telephone service is so very vital, it must be handled right.

It takes more than marvelous mechanisms to give you the kind of service you want. It takes an army of intelligent, well-trained people, who know their jobs from long experience—who have a sincere desire to serve you well.

Today in Philadelphia are gathered representatives of The Telephone Pioneers of America, for the Sixteenth Annual Meeting of their General Assembly. This national organization has 36,000 members, every one of whom has served for 21 years or more in the telephone industry!

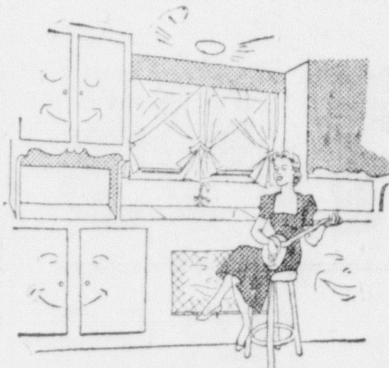

To these loyal veterans is due much credit. They have helped to develop a telephone service that enables you to reach friends, relatives and customers near or far—quickly, easily and at low cost.

More About Kitchens

Who likes Winter, anyhow? Outside of a few chest-thumpers who stand up healthily and say cold weather makes 'em feel fine! Most of us sort of resign ourselves to a certain amount of chills and frostbite and do our best to hole in like a rabbit and wait.

There are, however, a few small things we can do to make our winter more enjoyable. For one thing, we can make ourselves a nice warm, bright kitchen where the whole family can gather... and speaking of color, the rainbow's the limit... although it's well to choose kitchen color which is pale enough to reflect plenty of light.

Yellow's a nice cheery "pick up" for a kitchen. Makes it seem as though the sun were shining even when it isn't. It's easier to work when we're surrounded with this gay color. So, if you're a little depressed by the out-of-doors, turn your back on it—and paint your kitchen yellow, in a good washable finish. And again, be sure it's washable, because there will be finger prints and cooking stains and smoke from the frying pan, and all sorts of things you'll want to take off your walls.

Cream is a good trim color with yellow. Cream colored enamel for woodwork and doors... and, if you can stretch the budget that far, a nice new linoleum in warm reddish tones... or, if you like contrast, blue. Incidentally, blue enamel would look nice as a backing in your cupboards and shelves, and perhaps white net curtains with a blue ruffle or so at the windows. Sounds nice, doesn't it?

It is nice, too. And as good a tonic for doing away with "Winter Blues" as anything else in the world.

If, for some reason, you hate yellow like poison, there are lots of other combinations you may use. How about pink and cream? Pink walls and cream woodwork? Or how about pale gray walls and something revolutionary like light pink or light green for woodwork and doors?

No housewife worth her salt should put up with a drab kitchen for a single minute longer than she has to—especially when it can be sunny, cheerful and gay in its colorful finishes, which definitely, very definitely, are not expensive.

SCHOOL GRID TEAMS TO BATTLE THIS WEEK-END

By Louis Tomlinson
Picking the grid winners of Lower Bucks County school games so far has not been an easy task. And though the games this week are few and appear to be easy prey for either one school or another in every case, it may not wind up as such at the close of the day's proceedings.

Take that tilt up in Morrisville for instance—the one between the Bulldogs and Treton Immaculate Conception. According to scores, Morrisville should win handily, but previous scores mean little or nothing in grid battles and often they are a source of mis-leading.

Immaculate beat the N. J. S. D., 14-6, whereas Morrisville topped the Deaf boys, 25-0, which all leads one to believe that Hoffman's lads should conquer the Trenton boys. And we are inclined to be one of those believers for the Blue and Gold are stepping along at a rapid pace right now.

On the other hand, there's that tussle up in Fallsington this afternoon between the Alumni and the under-graduates at Fallsington High School. By this time Coach Mike DeRisi should have at least two victories under his belt instead of looking for his first of the present campaign. The "Farmers" have been coming along rather slowly this year so far, in fact, too slowly to suit DeRisi, but they should be able to knock off their old teammates this afternoon for their initial conquest of the current season.

Therefore, in accordance to Hoyle (since five straight defeats for Mike's proteges is not in his books) we are inclined to pick the varsity against their old team-mates. But don't be surprised, if—

And finally, that scrap out at Lang-horne (if it takes place) should be a hot one. But somehow, we feel it won't materialize since we've heard nothing of the Lambertville club this season to date. Naturally, this makes it tough for us to decide as to who might have a chance. But if it is played we feel fairly sure of ourselves by sticking to Coach Beck's Redskins with Klein and McCahan going to town again.

The last tilt of interest to Lower Bucks County fans to be played to-morrow is the one scheduled for Sellersville-Perkasie between the Perkasie boys and Coach Bill Dougherty's Jenkintown eleven who should be on the rebound after that 19-6 drubbing handed them by Doylestown last week. It hasn't been Dougherty's policy to lose two in a row in football, and in view of this we favor the Jenkintown boys.

And just out of the fun of it we can't overlook Coach Juenger's Junior Varsity eleven which clashes with Pennington Prep J. V. at the local school field this afternoon. Last year Bristol walloped the Prep boys, 44-6, and although the score may not be so high this year, at least it might be considered folly to select the visitors. Therefore, we pick Juenger's J. V. in an easy decision.

TEAMS HOTLY CONTESTING FOR LEAGUE HONORS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 22—Standings of the Lower Bucks County Soccer League released here by the league's secretary, Coach George Reimer of Bensalem, shows there is a tight place trophy and honors in this league between three schools. First place among these three schools is separated by one point.

right end, who speared the ball on the visitors' 15 yard line and raced over the goal line from there. Once more the attempt for the added digit missed.

Bensalem started another drive for a fourth touchdown; in fact they had all but completed it when the whistle beat them to the tape. The game ended with the ball on St. Francis' one yard line in the Owls' possession. The visitors failed to click on the offense, showing a lack of punch in their drives for they never once crossed into Bensalem's territory. However, this was due mainly to the poor punting of their kicker who couldn't get any off for any distance this afternoon.

With their straight victories under their belt, the Owlets will now prepare to meet the undefeated Hares of Bristol High. These two clubs will meet at Bensalem on November 1.

CALLS OFF PRACTICE

Coach "Bill" Dougherty has called off practice for the St. Ann's A-A gridders tonight. The team will meet tomorrow afternoon on St. Ann's field Garden street and Jefferson avenue. The "Saints" play Carlisle C. C. in their home opening Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Use of Kicking

By BURNLEY

Although a great punter and place-kicker doesn't get the publicity given a sensational ball-carrier, coaches will tell you that the kicker is often the more valuable of the two.

The punt is of extreme importance both on offense and defense. A team that is consistently out-kicked will find itself losing ground constantly, and will be at a real disadvantage.

A powerful punt has gotten many a team out of a tight spot, backed up against their own goal line. On the other hand, a brilliantly aimed "coffin-corner" boot has often set the stage for a touchdown, putting the other team on the spot.

The importance of placement kicking and booting points after touchdown need hardly be emphasized. With so many evenly matched teams, the goal kick is often the one-point margin between victory and defeat.

Among the notable booters of the current crop, one must name Cecil Isbell of Purdue; Tom Burnette, crack placement kicker and brilliant punter of North Carolina; Piet of Creighton, who last season got off a punt traveling 83 yards on the fly and rolling another 15; Spurgeon of Illinois, famed as a place-kicker, whose toe has saved several games for the Illini; Hartman of Georgia; Hackney of Duke; Davis of Indiana; Paulman of Stanford; Williams of U. C. L. A.; and White of Colorado.

SOME SQUARE GUYS ALSO IN BOXING GAME

By Pat Robinson
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(INS)—It is undoubtedly true that the fight game produces more than its share of selfish, larcenous and chiseling individuals.

But it also produces its quota of square-shooting hombres and occasionally comes up with a representative who has all the qualities for which better men become famous.

Such a one was the late Arthur Soulier, a Frenchman, who gave his life for the fighter he managed, the fighter since becoming a heavyweight contender.

Many years ago Soulier came to this country to fight some of the best lightweights we had. He campaigned rather successfully, made a little money and went back to his dear Paris.

He liked Paris but he also liked New York and always wanted to return, but the question of finances always bobbed up to deter him.

"Some day," he told friends, "I'll return to the United States with a great fighter, I'll manage him and we'll both become millionaires."

The years drifted by but that great fighter and those American millions seemed more distant than ever.

Then one day a Paris newspaper decided to run a heavyweight tournament for novice heavyweight fighters. The only requirements for an entrant were that he should be French, that he should be big enough and that he never should have had a fight.

Reading that, Soulier saw the fulfillment of his dreams. He went out into the street and the first big strong young fellow he met he asked to enter the tournament.

That big fellow was Andre Lenglet, the French heavyweight, who now is ambitious to meet Joe Louis for the world's championship.

Soulier took him in hand. He treated him like a father. He taught him all he knew and he seconded him in all his fights.

Lenglet won the tournament, and started his climb to world fame and riches.

But to get the fame and the riches it first was necessary to reach the United States. How to get there? A cut-throat solved the problem for both.

They arrived and Soulier was happy. His golden dreams were about to be realized.

Then one night on upper Broadway a taxi bore down on them. Soulier, unmindful of his own safety, pulled Lenglet out of danger. The taxi struck, and Soulier was killed.

GIANTS LIKELY TO GET INCREASES IN SALARIES

By Lawton Carver

(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(INS)—Mr. Horace Stoneham, the young owner of the New York Giants, is confronted by the baffling problem of revising his payroll, to bring salaries of his hired hands up in keeping with their position as pennant winners for the second straight time.

However, in view of his past record in the matter of paying his men, he probably will increase the wages so substantially all along the line that there won't be a single holdout next spring.

It will be recalled that after last season he was so liberal with raises that all hands fell into line without a murmur, notwithstanding the fact that they had won the first of their two straight pennants. On the other hand, the Yankees started without one star—Mr. Red Ruffing, the pitcher, who finally signed in May—and came very close to starting without Mr. Lou Gehrig, the first baseman. Jake Powell, the outfielder, was a holdout and some of the rest hesitated and had to be shipped into line.

Not so with the Giants. Even Carl Hubbell, who virtually on his own had won the pennant for them, took one look at his contract, and not only signed it and immediately returned it, but thanked Mr. Stoneham for his generosity.

It is reasonable to assume that Hubbell and the rest will react similarly to whatever Mr. Stoneham regards as a fair wage. Still, it's a problem for Mr. Stoneham, especially since he was so lavish recently in his treatment of Manager Bill Terry, who was given a five-year contract at $40,000 a year.

That is a precedent the players will wish to see followed in their own behalf, not to that extent, of course, but—well, anyhow, they will be expecting big raises, especially the six or seven outstanding performers—Hubbell, Mancuso, Danning, Whitehead, Moore, Ott, perhaps, and Cliff Melton.

Although he couldn't curb the power of the Yankee bats in the world series, Melton earned his right to a place among the best hurlers of last season.

SOLEBURY, Oct. 22—With weather being inclement on Tuesday, hundreds of Bucks county farmers took the day off, in order to attend the combination sale on the premises of the Rice Brothers, here. Four auctioneers were kept busy, the net amount of the sale being $4800. Poultry brought $2917 and hogs $1240.

Poultry again took the lead at the sale. Every pen was filled, but by the time the sale was brought to a conclusion every bird on the place was sold. One of the members of the firm stated this morning that it would have been possible to sell more poultry had it been on hand. Leghorn hens were much in demand.

The sale of cattle was very small.
